How long does the ferry take?

Preparation:

Copy the student A sheet for half of your class and the student B sheet for the other half.

In class:

Lead in by asking students what they know about New Zealand. Collect their ideas on the board. Elicit that New Zealand has two main islands, so when travelling from the North Island to the South Island they can either fly or take the ferry. Tell students they are now at the information desk at the harbour in Wellington on the North Island and want to go to Picton on the South Island with the Interislander ferry and need some information. They will do a role-play to exchange information.

Divide students into pairs, one A and one B. Hand out the papers and give them a few minutes to read the information and fill in the questions. Help students with unknown words and check to see that they have filled in the questions correctly.

Student A starts as the tourist, student B as the information desk clerk. Ask them to get the information they need using the questions they formulated and taking notes. After a few minutes students change roles. At the end students should compare their notes.

Ask students if they would like to travel to New Zealand and encourage a conversation.
