

Unit 4, video script

Woman: Another beer?
Man: No, thanks, um ...
Woman: Melissa.
Man: Melissa. Nice hat.
Woman: Do you like it?
Man: Actually I do. It's very, um, sweet.
Woman: Are you sure you don't want anything else? Some snacks? Or we have a delicious red wine – a merlot. My boss got it for the Christmas season.
Man: Well, I guess that goes well with the hats, then?
Woman: Not really, but it goes well with the barbecued spare ribs. I suggested a nice roast, but the boss doesn't think our customers will change their eating habits just because it's Christmas. What do you think?
Man: I think with this hat they'll eat anything.
Woman: Does that mean you'd like something to eat?
Man: Well, I guess I have to now. Do you have any light dishes?
Woman: No ribs?
Man: No, they're too heavy. I won't sleep.
Woman: Oh, OK. Let me think. We have a spicy vegan Thai curry, which also goes very well with the merlot by the way.
Man: Hmm, I don't know. What else do you have?
Woman: Um, Mexican salad with beans?
Man: Um, not really.
Woman: Well, how about dessert?
Man: Now, that's a good idea.
Woman: We have a wonderful Pavlova. It's quite rich but I am sure it'll give you sweet dreams.
Man: Yes, sounds good. I'll have the Pavlova.
Woman: I'm so sorry. We're out of Pavlova. But we do have a great Christmas pudding.
Man: No, I don't like Christmas pudding.
Woman: But what about my hat?
Man: No, sorry. Maybe next time, on New Year's Eve?
Woman: Does that mean you're coming back?
Man: I might do that.
Woman: Um, that's £6.50 for the beers.
Man: Oh dear, I don't have any money.
Woman: Well, Merry Christmas.
Man: Wow, really? That's a nice Christmas present.
Woman: You're welcome.