

Unit 7, video script

Scott: OK.
Liz: Scott? Oh, hi! I can see you! This is great!
Scott: But I can't see you. Liz. You have to turn on your camera.
Liz: How do I do that?
Scott: Click on the camera icon at the bottom.
Liz: Ah, yes. Oh wow! And I can see myself, too. How weird!
Scott: Well, I think it's lovely to see you.
Liz: Yes, of course. Hello, darling. How are you?
Scott: I'm good. Great actually. I love it here.
Liz: That's fantastic. And Carla?
Scott: She's very excited to show her brother around. She's really sweet. She's already shown me Waterton and if she gets Monday off, we'll visit Glacier National Park. And guess what – we might do a helicopter tour there!
Liz: Really? That's amazing!
Scott: Carla says it's the best way to see the mountains, the lakes, and the forest. If the weather's nice, we'll also go hiking. And if we're really lucky, we might see a bear!
Liz: If you're lucky, you won't!
Scott: I guess you're right. Oh Liz, this country is just amazing!
Liz: Where exactly is Waterton? In the south, right?
Scott: Yeah, more or less. It's on the border with the US, north of Montana. It's too bad you have to work and can't be here with me.
Liz: I know. Maybe next time. Is Carla gonna stay in Canada?
Scott: Well, she enjoys it here. She's already made some good friends. And yes, I think, if she finds a better job, she might stay.
Liz: What kind of job is she looking for?
Scott: Actually, she has a job interview next week. It's as a tour guide in the National Park. I thought you could tell her about your experience at work.
Liz: Sure! I'm happy to help if I can! And now that I know how to use Skype. It really is lovely to see you. I miss you, you know.
Scott: I miss you, too.
Liz: So, what time's your flight back home on Sunday? When do you arrive?
Scott: Well, I'm leaving here in the morning and the flight arrives at six p.m. Can you meet me at the airport?
Liz: Of course! I can't wait!
Scott: Me neither.
Carla: Hey Scott, I'm home. How was your day?
Scott: Oh, Carla's back. Wait. She might want to talk to you. ... Oh! Liz?
